Write-around-the-Town is a writing marathon with groups of 4-5 TCs beginning at the Maine Discovery Museum in Bangor. Writers travel to three downtown locations, writing and perhaps sharing for about a half-hour at each location.

The story of Writing Ourselves...
Some years ago, Co-director Maureen Montgomery (MWP 2002) suggested, "You know, Maine Writing Project members do a lot to help young writers and to support each other in the teaching of writing. Wouldn't it be nice to set aside one day each year and just write for ourselves!" Since 2009, MWP members have gathered for an early spring Saturday to do 3 things we love: write, reconnect with each other, and enjoy good food and conversation. Please join us!
