About the Maine Writing Project
Young Authors Camps are presented by the Maine Writing Project in the College of Education and Human Development at the University of Maine. MWP is dedicated to the improvement of writing and learning across the curriculum at all grade levels. Instructors at the camp are teachers who are writers themselves and have extensive experience and education in the field of writing. We believe that all of us -- students and teachers alike -- learn to write by writing. Come write with us!

Basic Information

What is a Young Authors Camp?
Young Authors Camp is a 5-day, 18-hour, summer experience that inspires creative thinking and writing. Young authors explore different writing genre including autobiography, poetry, fiction, and nonfiction, share their writing in a supportive, encouraging community of writers, and have fun.

When and where is it?
July 6 - 10, 2015 - Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to noon - at the University of Maine, Orono campus, in air-conditioned DP Corbett Hall, with short explorations on campus.

Who teaches at Young Authors Camp?
All instructors are certified teachers as well as teacher-consultants of the Maine Writing Project who have completed a six-credit graduate course in writing and the teaching of writing at the University of Maine.

Is Young Authors Camp right for my child?
We use the writer’s workshop model that draws on student interests, experiences and wonderings, as well as their love of learning. The majority of camp time is spent actively engaged in writing. If your child is willing to try new things, enjoys making friends, likes writing and wants to learn more about it, this may be the chance to take that writing to a new level!
