

Student Teaching Exit Survey

Each year, all graduates of a UMaine College of Education and Human Development teacher preparation programs complete a survey to inform the college of how effective aspects of their program have been in preparing them to work in Maine classrooms and beyond. The majority of graduates felt that their program preparation provided them with the content knowledge, skills, and dispositions needed to work in PK-12 classrooms. Faculty in the teacher preparation programs use this data to inform program revisions to ensure that our graduates are well prepared to meet the needs of all learners.
