Ellie Drago-Severson is Professor of Education Leadership and Adult Learning & Leadership at Teachers College, Columbia University. A developmental psychologist, Dr. Drago-Severson teaches, conducts research, and consults to school and district leaders, teacher leaders, and organizations on professional and personal growth and learning; leadership that supports principal, teacher, school, and leadership development; and coaching and mentoring in PK–12 schools, university settings, and other adult education contexts. She is also an internationally certified developmental coach, who works with leaders to build internal capacity and achieve improvement goals. Her work is inspired by the idea that schools must be places where adults and children can grow, and she is dedicated to creating the conditions to achieve this and to helping leaders and educators of all kinds to do the same on behalf of supporting adults and youth. She is author of the best-selling books Helping Teachers Learn: Principal Leadership for Adult Growth and Development and Leading

Adult Learning: Supporting Adult Development in Our Schools, as well as Becoming Adult Learners: Principles and Practices for Effective Development and Helping Educators Grow: Practices and Strategies for Supporting Leadership Development. She is a co-author of Learning for Leadership, Learning Designs, and the bestseller, Tell Me So I Can Hear You. Her latest book, Leading Change Together (co-authored with Jessica Blum-DeStefano), was released in January 2018. Currently, she and co-authors Pat Maslin-Ostrowski and Jessica Blum-DeStefano are writing Leaders’ Internal Experiences with Challenge and Change, based on their longitudinal, mixed-methods research with leaders domestically and internationally. In addition, Dr. Drago-Severson, along with co-authors Jessica Blum-DeStefano and Deb Brooks-Lawrence, is examining how leaders’ internal capacities influence the ways they lead on behalf of social justice and equity. This research aims to articulate a developmental continuum that can help leaders and those who prepare them grow the growers of a more equitable future.
