INTEGRATING AI THROUGH THE LENS OF SAMR

WORKSHOP DESCRIPTION

AI is everywhere and teachers and students have a wide range of knowledge and experience with its use. This workshop focuses on how to provide professional development for teachers to explore AI and integrated it into their curriculum. The SAMR model serves as a framework for using AI intentionally so that it is not just seen as something to be afraid of or the latest gimmick.

PRESENTER BIOGRAPY

Liz Guillemette is the Library Media Specialist at Maranacook Community High School in Readfield. She moved to the library position after seventeen years as an English teacher because she loves libraries and sees them as a hub for information, equity, and community. Liz earned a BA in English and Education from Bucknell University, an MS.Ed in Literacy from the University of Souther Maine, and Ed.S in Writing and the Teaching of Writing from the University on Maine, Orono. She is currently completing the Library Media Specialist certificate program at the University on Maine.
