

THE UNIVERSITY OF MAINE

School of Nursing

Master of Science in Nursing
Individualized Concentration (IMSN)

What is the Individualized Masters of Science in Nursing?

This concentration is for students who desire a Master's in Nursing but do not want to become Family Nurse Practitioners or Nurse Educators. The program of study will be developed between the student and the advisor. Possible focus areas include nursing administration/leadership, public health, nurse wellness.

How many credits will I need? Do I need to take any clinical courses?

The concentration requires between 33 and 37 credits depending on the student's area of interest. A precepted field experience in a clinical setting is required. Field experiences are tailored to match the student's desired area of expertise.
