

criminology

graduate studies

The Department of Sociology and Criminology at Saint Mary's University offers one of the few graduate programs in Criminology in Canada aimed at students whose intellectual interests lie in critical criminology. Our M.A. program provides students with an opportunity for advanced work in critical criminology and social justice, providing students with the analytical and research skills necessary for further graduate study, research, or teaching; policy research and practice; or employment in government/ non-government agencies and the private sector.

areas of expertise

- corporate crime
- crime prevention
- crime and the media
- criminalization strategies
- critical criminology
- feminist criminology
- girls in the justice system
- organized crime
- policing and law enforcement

- political economy of crime
- politics of drug regulation
- prisons and prisoners' rights
- punishment and culture
- restorative justice
- socio-legal studies
- state crime
- young offenders
- youth justice

SMU is located in Halifax Nova Scotia—named “the hippest little city in North America” by Harper’s Bazaar. This port city is steeped in history and surrounded by natural beauty. As Nova Scotia’s capital, Halifax is the major centre of the Maritimes and is the largest city east of Quebec City and north of Boston. Halifax is also an ideal laboratory for the study of crime and the structural inequities in society that give rise to crime and criminality in North America.

One University. One World. Yours.