

Student Accessibility Services Documentation Form

The student named below has requested reasonable accommodations from Student Accessibility Services (SAS) at the University of Maine specifically related to the impact of COVID-19 requirements on the student’s ability to access the University’s programs and activities. In order to determine eligibility and to provide accommodations, we require documentation of the student’s disability. This form is to be completed by the treating clinician, psychiatrist or medical provider only. Forms completed by the student or parent will not be considered documentation of disability. Once completed it can be returned to us via email at um.sas@maine.edu, faxed to 207.581.9420 or regular mail. The information provided will not be filed with the student’s other educational records, but will be kept in the student’s file at SAS, where it will be held confidential. In addition to the requested information, please attach any other information you think would be relevant to the student’s reasonable accommodations. Please contact us if you have questions or concerns. Thank you for your assistance.

ADA Background:

A student has a disability if they have an impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities or a record of such an impairment. “Substantially limits” under the ADA Amendments Act is considered when a person has an impairment; it need not prevent or severely or significantly restrict a major life activity to be considered “substantially limiting.” Nonetheless, not every impairment will constitute a disability. Also, a condition that is intermittent or relapsing in nature must be assessed when it is active to identify whether it is substantially limiting. You also must look at a condition without mitigating measures (except ordinary eyeglasses) to identify whether it is substantially limiting.

The ADAAA provides examples of “major life activities,” such as “caring for oneself, performing manual tasks, seeing, hearing, eating, sleeping, walking, standing, lifting, bending, speaking, breathing, learning, reading, concentrating, thinking, communicating, working” and also includes the operation of a major bodily function, such as functions of the immune system, normal cell growth and digestive, bowel, bladder, neurological, brain, respiratory, circulatory, endocrine and reproductive functions.
