University of Maine Diversity Leadership Institute (UMDLI)
Annual Report
Covering the Period from July 1, 2004 through June 30, 2005

Long-Term (5-Year) Vision
The vision for the UMDLI is to continue and build on the momentum of the successful first year of the Institute. By the summer of 2009, 30 plus UMaine employees will be Institute members or active ALUMS of the Institute. Due to the grass-roots nature of the Institute, these individuals will positively impact the University, their families, and their communities as a result of the life-altering experiences afforded them through their membership in the Institute and their commitment to diversity work.

Highlight(s) of the Year (July 2004 through June 2005.)
There were numerous valuable experiences during the year from the travel to the National Conference on Race and Ethnicity (NCORE) by Institute participants (2004 in Miami—Devon Storman, Cindy Thomas, Fran Sulinski, Susan Russell, Bill Murphy, Shezwae Fleming/2005 in NYC—Angel Loredo, Tammy Light, José Cordero, Christine Finemore, Carl Mitchell, Frank Wertheim, MaryBeth Willett) to the year’s culmination with the Transition Dinner in May. (See attached UMDLI Programming 2004-2005.) The highlight of the year, however, was the April visit to UMaine of diversity activist Tim Wise. He delivered his message on white privilege and racism to the campus community and spent a half-day with Institute members.

Programmatic Initiatives Implemented between July 1, 2004 and June 30, 2004

1. New programs or Grants submitted and/or awarded.
   The UMDLI was funded for 2004-2005 through a $10,000 grant from the University’s Diversity funds. Cooperative Extension collaborated with the DLL and contributed its $3,000 Diversity fund grant. A request was made to Equal Opportunity and Diversity (EO&D) to continue Diversity funding. Susan Nichols, Director of EO&D, committed $10,000 for FY06 contingent on the Diversity budget remaining the same in FY06. UMDLI applied to the Cultural Affairs Committee/Distinguished Lecture Series and received $2,000 in support of the Tim Wise visit. Equal Opportunity & Diversity contributed $500 toward the visit and the DLL contributed $2,315.

2. Scholarly presentations both written and oral.
   A discussion of UMDLI and NCORE took place at the September 22, 2004 DLL Gathering/Peace Studies Diversity Breakfast Series.

3. Special recruitment initiatives.
   Two member recruitment meetings were held in January 2005. The meetings were promoted with an invitational flyer mailed to all UMaine employees and through FirstClass postings. Seventeen people attended the January 14 meeting and five attended the January 18 meeting. Seven people applied for UMDLI membership. The selection committee, composed of Barb Blazej, Jerry Ellis, Susan Russell, Fran Sulinski, and Devon Storman, recommended five names to Dean Robert White who endorsed the recommendation. The remaining two were assigned alternate status and one of the two became an active member when Shezwae Fleming resigned her University position.

4. Diversity initiatives.
   The major diversity initiative of the Institute for 2004-2005 was the selection of Tim Wise as a campus speaker and the orchestration of his visit. With the assistance of the Cultural Affairs Committee and a contribution from Equal Opportunity and Diversity, the UMDLI and the Division of Lifelong Learning were able to support the visit to campus of anti-racism activist, speaker and author Tim Wise. On April 21 Tim Wise spent the morning in a workshop for UMDLI members, had lunch with the Dean of the Division of Lifelong Learning and the Director of Equal Opportunity and Diversity, and from 1:30 to 3:30 held a “Conversation for Administrators (attended by approximately 25 people). His visit culminated with an evening lecture attended by approximately 150 people with representatives from faculty, administrators, community members, and the student body. The reaction of the attendees was infectious and the sales of his book following his lecture would indicate a desire to learn more about what he has to say. Follow-up comments have been very positive including indications that his book will be assigned reading next year in some courses. The evening lecture was taped and is available for classroom use.

Another campus visit shared with people outside of the Institute was the March 27 one-woman play, White Lies: One Woman’s Quest for Release from the Enchantment of Whiteness. Anne Sibley O’Brien performed her play for members of the Division of Lifelong Learning, Cooperative Extension, and the UMDLI. An opportunity for reflection followed the performance. She spent the following morning working more extensively on privilege issues with the UMDLI members.

Reading List:

5. Number of individuals served by unit from July 1, 2004 to June 30, 2005.
In addition to the 16 UMDLI members (10 original and 6 new) and the additional six Planning Committee members, it is estimated that 200 plus individuals benefited directly from 2004-2005 UMDLI programming. It is unclear the number benefiting indirectly. Members bring his or her circle to each Institute gathering and the circle leaves with them. The Institute is changing lives and the participants of the Institute are using the power of knowledge to make sure that they are not the sole beneficiaries. Just as stones dropped in water create overlapping concentric circles changing the pattern of the water, so do Institute members change the campus culture. The resulting ripples impact search committees, task forces, departmental meetings, and face-to-face encounters.

Anticipated challenges for the upcoming academic year.

1. Create programming and opportunities that maintain the positive momentum obtained in the first year of the Institute.
2. Develop a plan for active ALUMS that stimulates a desire for continued interest in the work of the Institute. A first step was to appoint all active ALUMS to the Planning Committee.
3. Connect with UMaine administrators to promote and educate.

Anticipated initiatives for the upcoming academic year.

1. Identify and promote an invited diversity speaker.
3. Develop a UMDLI website.
4. Develop promotion opportunities for the UMDLI.
5. Work with the Planning Committee to identify and develop roles for the active ALUMS.

A heart-felt thank you to the 2004-2005 Planning Committee Members for their courageous, thoughtful, and ground-breaking work:
